America has discovered the satellite earth station.

It's a fact. Drastically lower prices, coupled with increasing availability of satellite television programming, is rapidly expanding market demand.

No earth station supplier is in a stronger position to meet that demand than Scientific-Atlanta.

We're the world's largest manufacturer of earth stations. We have more than 3600 installations throughout the world. And we have practical experience that no one else in the industry has.

We also offer the broadest selection of earth station products.

A complete selection of sizes and types, from 10-meter antennas for transmitting satellite television programming to our 3-meter receive-only earth stations.

And because our components are modular, we can assemble the most practical earth station for particular geographic and performance requirements.

We make all of our own components. Every antenna, every receiver, every amplifier. Each is designed and built to meet the highest standards that exist. Namely, those of the broadcast, telecommunications and satellite communications industries.

Our products are backed with complete installation and support services, including site selection, assembly and installation and frequency coordination.

A lot of companies can give you an earth station. But only Scientific-Atlanta gives you the experience and professional service of the world's largest earth station supplier.

All you have to do is carry ESPN 24 hours every day...as a basic service or as an expanded basic service with at least a 90% penetration rate. Then supply us a verified subscriber count twice a year. Which entitles you to 5¢ a head every six months to do with whatever you please.

It's that easy when you play with ESPN. All appropriate forms and information will be mailed in the next few weeks. If you have any questions, call Jim Cavazzini at (203) 584-8477 or your regional affiliate representative:

Technology Forges Ahead Of Law

In the age where TVRO's are getting to be almost commonplace, we find that more and more copyright owners want to restrict the availability of their products to the heartland of America. A few cases in point are the New York Mets vs. Eastern Microwave/WOR lawsuit, and the latest one pitting Hubbard Broadcasting vs. SSS.

What do these suits have in common? The copyright law! These owners of baseball teams, television stations, motion picture studios, along with syndicated programmers do not want the majority of Americans living outside of major metropolitan areas to watch more varied television.

The Second Circuit U.S. District Court of Appeals has thrown out the restriction on "distant signal" carriage and "syndicated exclusivity" and as CATV operators we cannot add these signals after registration with the FCC and notification to the Copyright Office. The losing broadcasters intend to seek review in the Supreme Court but I feel they have little chance of success.

Why this lawsuit harassment? Very simply, the courts may rule in their favor, or if they do not it is a perfect opportunity for them to go to Congress and try to get relief.

We who live in rural American areas such as Hailey, Idaho (one of four towns that make up the world-famous Sun Valley ski resort) do not believe that we should be second-class television citizens. The Washington Post and the New York Times can be purchased in Hailey and they do not restrict the sale or distribution, so why then can these television stations and program suppliers feel that they can restrict their products? By the nature of the compulsory copyright license we are paying royalty fees for the use of their product.

Another battle is in the wings—Canada is finally putting four of its TV stations up on Anik A2/A3 (see chart center of this issue of SATGuide) and this is of interest to our local cable system since 15% of our visitors are from Western Canada. These visitors can buy the Vancouver and Edmonton newspapers in Hailey/Sun Valley but they cannot view, and our local cable company cannot carry this programming.

There is a man who lives ten miles south of Hailey and grows hops for Coors Beer and gets one poor channel of television via translator and will never be cabled because of the distance and low population density. He would like to install a personal TVRO at his home in order to enjoy some of the same programming that his friends have in Chicago and New York. Unfortunately, there is no way to legally watch this programming and because of his family's broadcast and newspaper interests and their involvement in politics he is too visible to put in a TVRO. His name is John Fell Stevenson, son of the late Adlai Stevenson.

Technology has indeed outstripped the law. Remember translators and how they started—First came the boosters and then the translators, neither of which were legal or licenseable. Next came the FCC to Colorado to shut them down and they were met at the "pass" by the governor of Colorado. And the governor said something like, "I will not permit my constituents to be third class television citizens" (i.e., no television at all). Back to the drawing board went the FCC and a deal was cut saying "get rid of the boosters and we will license your translators."

There is a message here to copyright owners, the FCC and the Congress of the United States. Citizens in the heartland of America are and will refuse to be second-class television citizens and fair and equitable laws are going to need to be written after the fact.

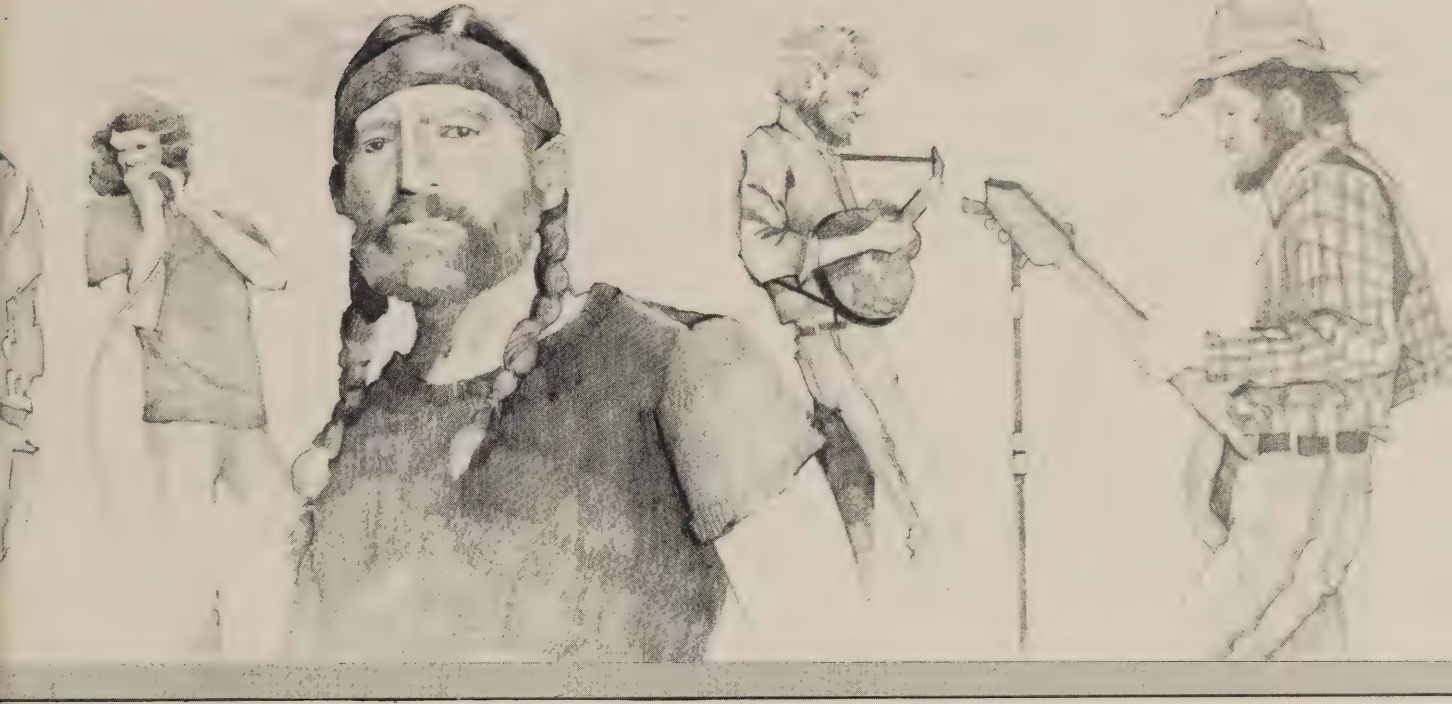
MUSIC TELEVISION™

MTV:

The first and only 24-hour a day, all stereo music channel will be launched on August 1. Integrating contemporary stereo music into television, MTV is an advertiser supported, basic cable service, produced and packaged by Warner Amex Satellite Entertainment Company (WASEC).

Varying visual and audio features will comprise the programming format of televised innovative presentations of musical groups singing and/or acting out their songs. "Video records"! Adding further dimension will be video art created specifically to complement an artist's music. Current hits from the hottest new acts and "golden oldies" from the best selling established recording artists will play on MTV. In addition to the regular rotation of music, there will be specials including a live concert once a week and an hour-long show once a month called Saturday Night Across America, to expose regional music. "VJ's" (video jocks) on-air personalities, like their radio counterparts, will lend continuity to the programming elements and provide concert information and music news.

Better than one out of every three persons in cable TV households is in the 12 to



Music Television

34 age bracket. MTV is the first advertiser supported cable service targeted specifically for the 12 to 34 age group. It's a group that has a lot of money to spend—teenagers alone in 1980 had a disposable income of $39 billion dollars—yet young adults are one of the most difficult targets for advertisers to reach via mass appeal programming. MTV combines two of the most important elements necessary to reach these discriminating young consumers: contemporary music and television, staples in their everyday life.

"You'll never look at music the same way again" is the national advertising slogan created for MTV. "Unlike any other advertiser supported network, we will be creating awareness for this channel through tailor-made, specialized marketing programs with and for the MTV affiliate", says Richard Guilmenot, Vice President of Marketing, WASEC.

MTV is not only a different concept in television, it's also going to open up a whole new marketing area for cable television and cable operators: cross promotions. "For the first time," says Tom Freston, Director of Marketing, "the cable operator is the natural ally of other businessmen in the community."

John Sykes, the Director of Promotion, describes himself as the "excitement machine". An important "excitement generator" for MTV will be national contests. "The contests will be high quality and straightforward," says Sykes, "because MTV's target audience has, in the past, been bombarded by every kind of promotion and gimmicks imaginable." MTV's contests will feature top of the line prizes such as "fantasy trips" and state of the art audio and video equipment. "Via such contests," adds Sykes, "MTV will be positioned as a trendsetter, as a place to find out the latest developments in music: its news, its look and its sound."

Tie-ins between MTV affiliates and local record stores and/or stereo equipment retailers are expected. "In fact," says Sykes, "at the last meeting of NARM, the National Association of Record Merchandisers, MTV was demonstrated to record retailers who were extremely enthusiastic about MTV's cross promotion possibilities. And MTV's target 12 to 34 age group (the record buying public) is the most active participant in cross promotions."

Sykes sees MTV cablecasting a live concert and shortly thereafter it being available on video disc and tape. The timed releases give added dimension to nation-wide marketing efforts. "Availability of such related products," notes Sykes, "would enable record stores and tape dealers to get involved."

Tom Freston is responsible for developing the overall marketing scheme for MTV nationally and locally. "It's an educational process because MTV is a totally new concept in TV," says Freston, "and we have a comprehensive support program to do that."

According to Gary Koester, WASEC Vice President, Sales, "We've been emphasizing MTV's extra revenue opportunities—selling local advertising, installing FM stereo hookups (MTV's audio signal will be satellite fed in stereo) and second set hookups." He continued, "But then Dave McDonald of the New York Times systems in New Jersey said, 'you're forgetting something . . . lift. MTV is going to increase the basic subscriber number.'"

WASEC president Jack Schneider says there is plenty of video material to fill up a 24-hour music channel. He says the recording companies and artists are Problems with microwave interference?

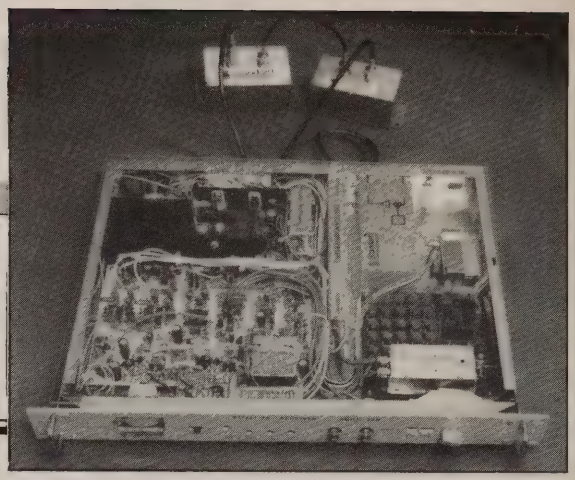
TRY FILTERING

By Keith Larson.
Standard Communications Corp.



Standard Communications Agile 24 Receiver With External Filters

Let me guess. This article caught your attention because:

- Your earth terminal performed great until a month after the installer left. Then the sparkles started.
- Your subscribers aren't buying that "sunspot" baloney anymore because now it happens mostly when the sun is setting.
- You've swapped LNA's/cables/receivers from horizontal to vertical four times, yet they persist only on one polarization (and only on two or three channels).

The Black Plague of Earth Terminals

Those sparkles are the fleas jumping from the backs of "temperature inversion", "reflection" and "modulation index" to spread the virus terrestris microwavus interferrio. (In other words, the ubiquitous "Ma Bell" is ringing your chimes). So you skimped a little on the initial frequency coordination because, as you said, "I'm out in the boondocks where telephone service comes via barbed wire fence", (or so you thought). If your problem is indeed terrestrial microwave interference, you now have four choices:

1. dig a hole 15-feet deep for the earth terminal (cost: $5,000 and up);
2. build a 15-feet high fence around it (cost: $2,000 +);
3. move the earth terminal to your other property five miles out of town (cost: $10,000 and up); or
4. try filtering (cost: $200 to $300).

Since there are many causes that produce similar symptoms, let's first review some pertinent facts about "their" terrestrial microwave in "our" satellite band and see if it can be reduced by other means (or maybe resolve that the problem isn't interference after all):

1. Their signal, though transmitted at about the same power level as ours, originates from no more than 50 miles away; ours comes from 22,300 miles away, hence, theirs will almost certainly be stronger. Indeed, if it wasn't for the shielding provided by hills, trees and buildings there would be few earth terminals in the United States without interference problems.
2. Their center frequency is always spaced 10 MHz away from ours and when modulated occupies a relatively narrow spectrum compared to ours—only two to five MHz compared to our 25 MHz or so.
3. They were here first. We are not going to stop transcontinental phone service because of sparkles on two or three channels, regardless of our coordination history.
4. Their effect on our earth terminal is the same as reducing the carrier/noise (C/N) ration (for example, moving the antenna off the satellite.) That is, if the carrier to interference (C/I) ratio is greater than 12 dB in a "typical" earth terminal (5m or less), there will be no perceptible degradation of the picture; at 11dB there will be perceptible "busyness" in the background: at 10 dB the sparkles start, and below 5 dB it degrades rapidly. (The problem, however, is

Introduction

The whole concept of LPTV is so new that few software suppliers have surfaced. Since LPTV in most cases will present a single channel of programming rather than the multiple channels of cable television, maximum use of the one channel must be obtained. This can be accomplished by dividing a twenty-four hour broadcast day into the following proposed segments:

8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Syndicated programming covering a full range of viewing interests. This service could be non-scrambled and have time-slots available for local advertising including the promotion of a scrambled night-time movie service.

6:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.

Premium movie service using individually addressable scrambling technology. This movie package would be similiar to packages currently offered by CATV, MDS/STV programming services.

2:00 a.m. to 8:00 a.m.

Many options exist within this time spot. Our suggestion is to mix alternate 15-minute time segments of a national text newswire with a local public information service utilizing Compuvid's "CPA" system (see article in July, 1981 SAT-Guide).

The following has been prepared for SAT-Guide by a new LPTV service which will be starting operation in early summer of 1982. We feel that this service, National Entertainment Television (NET), meets most of the above criteria and offers an interesting alternative for programming an LPTV station.

Programming Strategy

PART V, A

By Terry Easton

On September 17, 1980, the Federal Communications Commission announced the proposed creation of a new "narrowcast" television broadcast service in the United States called: Low Power Television (LPTV). By April 5, 1981, when the application freeze was applied, almost 5,000 filings had been received to construct and operate LPTV stations throughout the country. While many of these applications have been submitted by major corporate groups who have plans to provide their own programming, such as the Allstate Venture Capital's KUSK-TV (satellite re-translation from Prescott, Arizona), many individuals and smaller groups which have submitted applications for LPTV stations have yet to determine what specific programming they will carry, and how they will afford to finance the expensive programming costs.

National Entertainment Television, Inc. (NET) is a new satellite-based television network specifically created to provide programming to the exciting new LPTV marketplace. NET has recently entered into an agreement with AT&T to be provided with one of the first five new satellite television transponder services on the Comstar D-3 satellite. A second agreement will provide for an additional transponder in the next group of transponders to be assigned to this AT&T T.V. service. Already, over 73 NET Affiliates have filed to own and operate television stations throughout the United States, carrying NET's educational, commercial, and pay-television programming. By the Network inauguration date of July 1, 1982, National Entertainment Television expects to have over 250 affiliates covering the entire fifty United States.

Program, Program, Who's Got the Program?

The programming problem for low power television stations is a serious one. The conventional satellite-based suppliers such as the first run movie programmers, cannot easily afford to alienate their principal market, the CATV companies, by providing their programming feeds to cable television's competitors. Indeed, even the older MDS carriers are finding it more difficult to obtain programming feeds from the satellite suppliers in those areas in which cable television is strong. Similar marketplace realities also affect the other satellite-based programmers, effectively removing many potential program sources from the LPTV market.

Within the past few years, a number of new "delivery vehicles" have sprung up to expand the distribution mechanism, challenging the dominance of the commercial networks and the growing importance of the CATV systems. These include over-the-air subscription television stations (STV), multi-point distribution systems (MDS), of which there are hundreds of systems now licensed or in operation, satellite based MATV systems (such as the Holiday Inn's), and LPTV translators and program origination stations. LPTV is clearly a "narrowcast" competitor in the television viewer sweepstakes race.

With this competitive atmosphere firmly in mind, National Entertainment Television has conducted a series of surveys to determine both what the television viewer likes to watch, and what the LPTV affiliate would like to receive in the way of programming and Network support. The results of research studies made by other organizations were then compared to our own efforts.

Number one on the list is, not surprisingly, a first run full-length uninterrupted feature movie service, offered during the prime time evening hours. The explosive growth of STV broadcast station viewership over the past 36 months supports this observation in the marketplace. Tied for second place are a number of viewer groups who enjoy watching totally different types of programs. These include sports and news programming, call-in viewer involved talk shows, and adult R-rated movies. The latter service is preferred to be seen in the wee hours of the morning after the children have gone to bed.

In The News

Premiere Asking $15 Million for Satcom I Transponder and Uplink Facility. Premiere is offering to sell its rights to transponder 21, Satcom I, along with its transmitting uplink facility in Bristol, Connecticut, for $15 million in cash. Premiere paid $15 million to Satellite Syndicated Systems Inc. last year as part of its cost in putting together a proposed motion picture satellite-fed network for cable systems and over-the-air television operators. Premiere invested approximately $2.7 million in building the transmitting uplink facility. For futher information contact Burt. I. Harris, (213) 474-3500.

Showtime is First in Pay Industry to Offer Closed-Captioned Films. Showtime will be the first pay television service to offer closed-capitoned films for the hearing impaired. Showtime's program guide and on-air promotion will designate the showing of all closed-captioned films with the official captioning symbol. The National Captioning Institute (NCI), a non-profit organization based in Virginia, encodes the captions which are only visible to viewers with special decoders that reveal the caption on screen. These decoders are available from Sears-Roebuck Co. under the brand name, "Tele-caption." The captions appear on the bottom of the viewer's television screen much like subtitles in a foreign language film.

USA Network to Expand to 24 Hours. The USA Network announced that it would begin a schedule of 24-hour programming in October. Along with its 24-hour plans, the network's expansion involves the addition of three new series to the programming schedule. The three new programs will be entitled Better Homes and Gardens Idea Notebook, Scholastic Sports Academy, and The Wall Street Journal Evening News.

In another development, C-SPAN plans to move to its own satellite transponder in 1982. This will enable the service to expand and enhance its programming schedule. The USA Network will continue to expand its live, prime time sports programming, which will generally run from the evening prime time hours until 7:00 a.m. Women's and family service will be featured in a three-hour morning block during the week and on weekend afternoons. Children's programming continues to be featured in the after school hours on weekdays and on Saturday mornings and documentary/entertainment on late night weekends.

Fox Licenses Films to Showtime. Twentieth Century-Fox Telecommunications, Inc. and Showtime have signed a major licensing agreement for the pay television exhibition of several recent Fox hit films. Titles in the agreement include Nine to Five, Burbaker, All That Jazz, The Final Conflict and the recently released Eyewitness. Airing of the films is expected to begin this month and continue through 1982.

SelecTV Programming Buys Satellite Transponder Time From Wold. SelecTV Programming, Inc., Los Angeles, has purchased satellite transponder time from Wold Communications for distribution of its subscription television programming to STV stations and MDS systems around the country. The agreement, effective September 1, 1981, provides for Wold Communications to make available 8½ hours of satellite time daily Monday through Friday and 14½ hours daily each Saturday and Sunday. SelecTV programming currently distributes a total of 68 hours per week of movies, entertainment specials and sporting events to 10 STV and five MDS operations around the country. Most of the programming is up-linked from the facilities of Golden West Subscription Television, a SelecTV Programming client, in Oklahoma City. Programming will be transmitted between 7:30 p.m. and 4:00 a.m. (ET) Monday through Friday and 4:00 a.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Wold Expands Service to Cable TV Industry. In July, Wold Communications began providing Home Theatre Network six hours of satellite transponder time per day, seven days a week, for the transmission of HTN's cable television programming. Utilizing Wold's transponder on Westar III, Home Theatre Network will transmit its family-oriented movies daily between the hours of 8:00 p.m. and 2:00 p.m. (ET). During July, the movies were fed from Wold's Television Operating Center in the Empire State Building. In August, origination moves to Westinghouse Broadcasting Company (HTN's parent) facilities in Pittsburgh.

Post-Newsweek Productions Signs Exclusive Cable Development Deal With Producer Stu Rosen. Post-Newsweek Productions has signed an exclusive development agreement with producer Stu Rosen's Cherrywood Productions for the development of two first run programs designed specifically for cable. Cherrywood Productions will develop two original concepts. One will be a children's program; the other a comedy/variety show. Rosen is a ten-time Emmy Award winner. Tay Voye, Post-Newsweek's Vice President, Program Production and Distribution, stated, "We believe the time has finally come to offer first run shows to cable systems."

Court Makes WTBS Available To All Cable Systems. Based on an action taken by a Federal Court last week, the FCC Distant Signal and Syndicated Exclusivity Rules have been dissolved, at least temporarily. According to legal council, there is considerable uncertainty as to the permanent status of the court's action, since the Broadcasters have already asked for a reinstatement of the rules and have indicated that they will appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Nevertheless, unless another stay is granted, any cable system may now carry WTBS Channel 17 Atlanta TV signal on a full-time basis. Since this current "window" for carriage of distant stations might indeed be temporary, some cable systems are instituting carriage in the hopes they will be allowed a continuation should a reversal of the court come about. However, no such assurance can be guaranteed by anyone at this time.

Wold Subleases Full-Time Transponder on Comstar. Starting in July, Wold Communications began subleasing an additional full-time satellite transponder, bringing its current inventory of satellite time to more than 40,000 hours annually. Wold's new transponder, 11-H on Comstar D-1, was subleased from Warner Amex Satellite Entertainment Company. Woldcom will use the Comstar transponder primarily for the transmission of daily news feeds out of Washington, D.C., on behalf of several station groups, including Fisher Broadcasting and Cox Broadcasting, as well as Spanish International Network and Wold-Visnews Broadcast Services. In addition, the transponder will be used to transmit programming to Woldcom's Hawaiian broadcast clients via Wold's two Honolulu satellite earth stations.

General Electric Doubles Ad Buy on Black Entertainment Television. Robert L. Johnson, president of Black Entertainment Television (BET), announced that General Electric Corp. has doubled its advertising spots and extended its buy on the network from 39 to 52 weeks. Johnson said, "General Electric was one of the first ten national sponsors to recognize BET's ability to reach the Black consumer and commit advertising dollars to the network." Black Entertainment Television is the nation's only cable satellite television network providing Black oriented entertainment and sports programming to cable systems nationwide.

Slight Change in Catel Expo Show Dates. With respect for the many exhibitors and attendees of the Jewish faith who will be going to Catel Expo's Programming Sources '81 in Las Vegas this September, Catel Expo president, Don Mittman, has made a slight change in the show's schedule to permit them to observe the high holy days of Rosh Hasonah at home with their families. Rosh Hasonah's observance, which begins at sundown on Monday, September 28, and runs through the evening of Wednesday, September 30 coincides exactly with the original Catel Expo show dates. The new show dates will be Friday, September 25 through Sunday, September 27, allowing those exhibitors and attendees who are Jewish ample time to travel home for the start of the holy days observance.

SSS and Phipps Set Up Working Arrangement. Southern Satellite Systems, Inc. (SSS) and Phipps and Company Productions, both of Tulsa, have announced a working agreement to provide production and uplink capabilities for local cable systems. Using the GMC mobile unit owned by Phipps, cable systems can originate local programming, and in conjunction with the common carrier SSS, can regionalize or go nationwide with that same programming. Previews

Ballet Star Featured On ARTS. Alicia Alonso, the great Cuban ballerina will be seen performing in The Romantic Age, Saturday, August 1 on ARTS. The special, videotaped at the 1980 Festival Internacional Cervantino in Guanajato, Mexico, features Alonso and three other great ballerinas, Carla Fracci, Ghislane Thesmar and Evan Evdokimova recreating famous ballets of the mid-19th century. The four prima ballerinas also appear together in the 1845 masterpiece Pas De Quatre. Alonso continues to dance even though she is in her 60's, and what makes Alonso's accomplishments even more remarkable is the fact that she has been almost totally blind throughout most of her career. Alonso today is reportedly blind in one eye and has only partial vision in the other. But she is still dancing and running the Ballet Nacional de Cuba which she founded in 1948. "I can accept my blindness," she said several years ago. "I have learned to work to overcome it. But I am always afraid people will not understand this. I don't want my audience thinking that if I dance badly it is because of my eyes. Or if I dance well it is in spite of them. This is not how an artist should be."

ESPN August Previews. ESPN will air the Baseball Hall of Fame induction ceremony on August 2. Bob Gibson, Johnny Mize and Rube Fost are among the inductees at Cooperstown, N.Y. Women's tennis will be carried live from Toronto with semifinals August 22 and finals August 23. NASL soccer will air August 1 with Vancouver at Montreal; August 2 Atlanta vs. Washington; and August 15, Ft. Lauderdale vs. Tampa Bay. Don't miss the numerous CFL football games carried by ESPN during the month of August. Consult guide for dates and times.

CATV Programming Wakes Up To Women's Needs!

Phyllis Haynes, co-hosts WOR-TV's Straight Talk.

Barbara Herlocker and Don Chellew are co-hosts on The Picture of Health on SPN

Introduction

Since Satellite Syndicated System's slow-scan service The Women's Channel was launched in June of last year, there has been an increased awareness of the female viewing audience and a growing interest in providing programming targeted to these viewers.

Hearst Corporation's decision to enter the women's programming marketplace paved the way for other publishing companies to follow suit. Video Publishing will soon be in full bloom. Hearst's BETA will reflect Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazaar, House Beautiful, and Town and Country. A new service, UTV, will contain a new program concept involving the polling and surveying of women's viewpoints in conjunction with Charter Publishing, which publishes Ladies Home Journal and Redbook.

USA Network's You!, hosted by former editor of Mademoiselle magazine, was the first of the woman's "magazine" to air with its debut in May, 1981. Coming up in October, USA Network will premiere Better Homes and Gardens Idea Notebook and Alive and Well.

The following is a rundown on those CATV services which feature women's programming and the nature of these programs. Also included is women's programming that is in the works but not yet launched.

SPN
Satellite Program Network
TM

Satellite Programming Network

SPN (Satellite Programming Network) is the largest carrier of women's programming on the satellite system and the first service to specifically target programming to women.

At 9:30 a.m. (ET) SPN presents The Muriel Stevens Show. Ms. Stevens is an author, gourmet cook, and national restaurant reviewer. Her daily program from Las Vegas often features celebrity guests preparing their favorite recipes. In the health department, SPN presents the Fran Carlton Exercise Show, a sensible exercise show to help you stay in shape and keep fit. Also in the health area, SPN brings women The Picture of Health. Join Barbara Herlocker and Don Chellew in this entertaining program on holistic health. This show covers the whole spectrum of subjects which affect a person's physical, mental and nutritional well-being. The Picture of Health shows viewers a vast array of approaches to health and leaves it to them to discover their own avenues of behavior.

Nationally known author Carla Emery brings to television the secrets of simple living. Each episode of The School of Country Living was shot on location in the beautiful scenic Northwest. Shows were taped at the school itself, a picturesque ranch-farm nestled in the Northern Idaho Mountains. Also filmed were many beautiful spots in Northwest America, from an old sawmill, to a country fair, to a live livestock auction. Each program features three "back to earth" segments, featuring nationally known experts in their fields. Everything is explored from blacksmithing to stained glass windowmaking.

Lee Murray is the hostess on A Little Leeway and visits with people and places of interest, appealing to everyone and especially to women. The Total Look is a sometimes funny, sometimes controversial, but an always informative look at subjects such as video dating, body wraps, and plastic surgery for women.

Good Livin' is a unique half-hour made-for-cable television show containing information about people, places, products and services which make life in the 80's better. This information is communicated in an entertaining talk show format hosted by Barbara Finn-Pressley which consists of interviews and product demonstrations. Microwave and food processor cooking, as well as sex therapy counseling segments, are regular features on each show. Products shown on each program may be puchased directly by the viewer using the toll-free number or mail information which appears on the screen during each half-hour. There is also a high-quality product catalog available of all the items seen on the show, plus loads of others. Good Livin' is video taped in San Diego and is a joint production of Don Kirshner Cable TV and Barbara Finn-Pressley Productions.

Another SPN favorite, It's A Great Idea, is produced by Don Kirshner and hosted by Dave (N.Y. Nicks) and Geri DeBusschere. This program is based on the Great Ideas books which are produced by Family Circle Magazine and covers topics such as "How to Stay Pretty and Trim" and "Decorating Made Easy".

Last, but not least, SPN carries The Women's Channel three times a day in half hour segments at 8:30 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. (ET). Additionally, the program is shown six times on SPN during the weekend. The Women's Channel is a fast paced video treatment of the newest color slow scan program channel from SSS, programmed to meet the informational needs of the active adult women. The shows are comprised of a number of short, interesting features covering topics such as: Headliners—entertainers from the world of movies, television and music; Home—all activities centered around the house including decorating, gardening, cooking, entertaining, plants and pets presented in a manner useful to the busy women; On The Job—devoted to women working outside the home. Included are job related features on coping and succeeding in the working environment, and problems centered around the complexities of the many different roles today's women are required to fulfill; Feeling Your Best—current nutritional advice, exercises, health care tips, medicine, and diets; Looking Your Best—includes features on hair, makeup, fashion, etc.; Focus—human interest stories, along with features on unusual people and achievers' personal lives; Dollars and Sense—reports on consumer tips, financial advice, and getting the most for your money; and Just For Fun—includes travel, crafts, hobbies, games and things people do just for fun.

The Women's Channel, also available as a separate auxiliary service is transmitted via a sub-carrier of the same transponder that carries Atlanta SuperStation WTBS. This free service which went on satellite in June of 1980, is designed as an informational channel for the adult woman, and the cable systems that carry the channel from Satcom I, Transponder 6 subcarrier have access to the service full time, 24 hours a day. The Women's Channel was the first ever color slow-scan satellite channel and now services over 220,000 subscriber homes.

SPN is aired 24 hours daily on Westar III, Transponder 17. For additional information contact Sel Kremer (918) 481-0881 or circle Action Card No. 33.

WOR

WOR-TV, New York's SuperStation, which has provided viewers in America's number one TV market with 32 years of programming excellence, now provides that same unique entertainment to nearly three-and-a-half million cable subscribers throughout the country.

The Richard Simmons Show, carried Monday to Friday on WOR from 7:00 - 7:30 a.m. (ET), provides an innovative and humorous format in which advice about diet, health, exercise and beauty is blended. In between sit-ups and low-cal cooking lessons, Simmons dishes up a smorgasbord of characters, from the Reverend Reverend Pounds ("a man of the cloth—tablecloth") to a cop on the Slob Squad who patrols supermarkets and gives tickets to shoppers buying fattening foods. Richard's devoted and ever-increasing number of fans have succeeded in frequently making him the number one attraction in his time slot (source Nielsen, ARB ratings). Coincidentally, the New York Daily News reported that he is "coming close to achieving the status of messiah to America's . . . weight loss crowd". Simmons, himself once a fatty 268 pounds, teaches viewers the reducing techniques that enabled him to become svelte, muscular 137 pounds. The Richard Simmons Show is a Chip Enterprises Production in association with Golden West Television. Emmy Award winner Woody Fraser created the program that is being distributed by ICM Television, and is the executive producer. Nora Marie Fraser is the producer.

Straight Talk, carried Monday to Friday from 11:00 a.m.-12:00 noon (ET) is co-hosted by Mary Helen McPhillips and Phyllis Haynes. This informative talk show recently received a gold medal from the 23rd International Film and TV Festival for a series of outstanding programs on the hostage crisis in Iran. The basic philosophy of the show, during the nine years it has been on WOR-TV, has been to encompass all areas of public affairs, the sciences, and the arts. The fact that two women co-host the program, a rare occurrence in TV land, makes it additionally appealing to female viewers.

The twenty-four hour independent signal of WOR, which was launched on Satcom I in April of 1979, through the distribution of Eastern Microwave, Inc., is carried by cable systems in all fifty states. For additional information contact Catherine Quinlan (212) 764-7000 or circle Action Card No. 34.

FREQUENCY SITE PROTECTION for OFF-AIR TELEVISION

By Michael Morin, Comsearch

Area of Concern

Early last September, the FCC proposed a new television broadcast service, Low Power Television (LPTV). The Commission, in its Notice of Proposed Rule Making (BC Docket No. 78-253), describes this new service and the proposed rules governing it. Essentially the existing translator rules, Sec. 74 Subpart G of the Rules and Regulations would be modified to allow for the larger and more flexible low power service. These LPTV stations will operate at a low transmitter output power (hence the name), cover a much smaller service area, and cost much less to set up and operate than a full service station. They are intended to provide a multitude of programming forms, including local origination and subscription television, to underdeveloped markets, particularly in rural areas of the country. During the pendancy of the rulemaking, the FCC decided it would accept LPTV station applications prepared consistent with these proposed rules. However, on April 9, 1981, after an estimated 6,000 applications were filed, this decision was reversed. A moratorium of indefinite length was placed upon accepting LPTV applications. The tremedous response from people and companies wishing to start LPTV stations all across the country has the Commission, communications lawyers and engineers, and many other groups very occupied with this Low Power Service and its impact on the existing environment. One group of individuals concerned over this mini-station explosion are the Cable Television owners and operators. The potential for objectionable interference from a LPTV station to the reception of their existing cable systems is a source of worry to many of these operators. The purpose of this article is to discuss this potential interference, and the protection from it, available to cable systems.

Reporting Interference

In the Notice of Inquiry in the LPTV proceeding, the Commission invited cable operators to report any cases of objectionable interference resulting from existing translator operations. A number of comments were received from cable parties such as the National Cable Television Association (NCTA), Teleprompter, and various other independant cable operators. These groups contend that many cases of translator caused interference to the reception of cable channels have existed, and the advent of LPTV will greatly increase these occurrences. They also stated that all too often the burden of trying to eliminate the interference caused by a translator has been placed upon the cable operator. A plea was made that the same type of protection be provided to cable viewers as is afforded to regular broadcast stations. Before we discuss what type of protection was provided in the proposed LPTV rules, let us first look at the types of interference which can result to cable reception from an LPTV (or translator) station.

Types of Interference

The potential for objectionable interference from an LPTV station to cable reception really exists anywhere along the cable system. From the headend to the subscriber's set, anywhere the LPTV signal is of significant level in comparison to that which is being received and transmitted by the cable system, reception of an undesired signal is possible. For instance, if a cable system were receiving a distant signal off the air at their headend, and a nearby LPTV station was broadcasting on that same channel or an adjacent channel, interference to the cable system reception could result. This potential situation arose recently in coordination of an LPTV station in San Diego. An existing cable system in San Diego receives Channels 2 and 4 off the air from Los Angeles, a distance of 130 miles. A new LPTV station proposed to locate north of San Diego and operate on Channel 2, without interference to the existing full service stations in the area. However after interference analysis was performed, it was predicted that the LPTV broadcast on Channel 2 would interfere with the cable systems reception of that channel. A new channel was selected for the LPTV operation and the interference was avoided without service interruption.

An LPTV station (especially VHF) could also directly interfere with cable subscriber's sets. The LPTV signal can "leak" into and combine with the cable signal, either along the cable route or at the subscriber's set. Since both cable and LPTV prefer the use of VHF because of the technically superior characteristics of these channels, often the cable system and LPTV station will be operating on the same channel. If the LPTV signal leaks into the cable system, signal degradation of the desired signal, a double image, or reception of the undesired signal (LPTV) can result. Since it can be seen that a cable system is vulnerable to interference from a LPTV station, what protection for the nearly 15 million cable subscribers have the proposed LPTV rules provided?

Proposed Ruling

The existing translator rules (Section 74) do not directly provide for interference protection to existing cable systems. However, as a result of the LPTV inquiry the proposed rules recommend that "low power stations should not be authorized where it has been demonstrated that interference to an existing cable television service, at the headend, will be caused." When interference does arise in practice, three rules have been proposed.

1. "The low power station operator is strictly responsible for taking immediate corrective action where an interfering condition to any other service results from operations in violation of the Commission's technical standards, or from improper maintenance."

The antenna of tomorrow will see 14 satellites at once.

It's ready for you today at Satellite Communications Network.

Remember the name: Simulsat.® The one antenna that pulls in up to 14 different satellites simultaneously.

So you can tune in to virtually any programming that anyone beams down, with only a minimal investment when you want to see something on a different satellite. You won't have to worry about additional space for your next antenna, either. Simulsat on one foundation does it all.

Simulsat has the performance characteristics of a conventional 4.6 meter antenna; but it was designed to tune in any satellite within a 52-degree field of view. That means you can set it up anywhere in the United States and see up to 14 satellites at once, based on four-degree orbital satellite spacing.

Take a look at the future– today. Call (201) 658-3838 for more information on Simulsat* or the other uplink and downlink services of Satellite Communications Network.

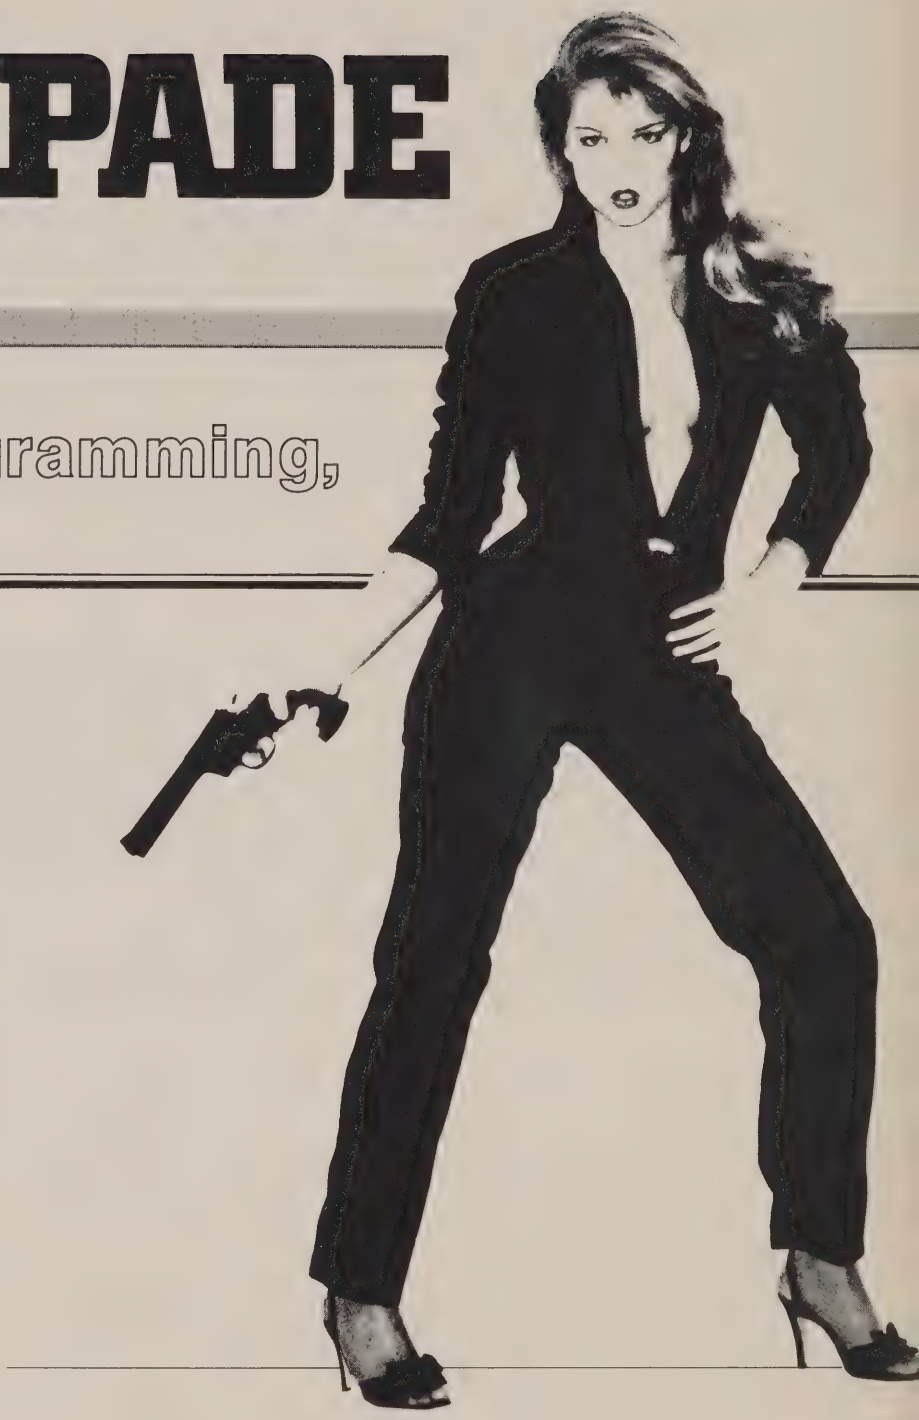
ESCAPADE

R-Rated Programming,



Escapade

Escapade was launched in December, 1980, sharing a transponder with its cultural sister Bravo and NCN (National Christian Network), from whom Rainbow Programming Services obtained transponder time.

The initial shock waves caused by the announcement of the intended R-rated service named Escapade were a reaction to the formation of the two seemingly opposite services which would be aired on the same transponder . . . the daring of Rainbow to put their adult entertainment alongside Christian programming . . . and the fact that the corporation behind these services, Rainbow Programming Services, was made up of a never-before powerhouse consortium of industry-wise companies. For the first time a group of cable television operators had joined forces to form a pay-TV company: Cablevision, Comcast Corporation, Daniels & Associates, and Cox Cable. There was little or no response to the R-rated programming content of the service itself, indicating that the time had finally come for public acceptance of an R-rated CATV service.

Prior to their becoming part owners in the co-venture of Rainbow Programming Services, Daniels & Associates were offering a risque stand-alone service to their affiliates in the Southwest. This service was responsible for the birth of the Escapade concept.

Heralding the coming of Escapade, sly slogans winked from Rainbow's ads suggesting that you "Send the kids to bed." Other catch phrases: "More mature cable", "Escapade meets the demand", "Bring the thrills back home", and "Your TV will never be the same."

Rainbow aptly described its service as ". . . adult entertainment for those who can handle it."

With the appointment of Jerry Maglio as president, a recognized leader in marketing basic and pay television services, and the announcement that Que Spaulding was moving over to Rainbow from Showtime to head its sales effort, it became evident that Rainbow Programming Services was going places.

A combination of the time being right, eye-catching advertisements, the moxie of the people behind the scenes at Rainbow and an apparent uptapped demand for this type of CATV programming alternative has proven to be a winning ticket. Six months following its premiere, Rainbow announced that Escapade would become a full-time, seven-day-a-week service beginning July 1, with Bravo being moved to another transponder to also become available on a full-time basis.

Claiming that viewers are asking to see this kind of programming and that Escapade complements existing pay television services because it's almost totally unduplicated, Rainbow's statistics illustrate that:

- 86.4% of pay subscribers like the concept of separating adult programming from family programming;
- 96.1% of pay subscribers feel that people should be free to view adult programming in the privacy of their own homes; and,
- in mature markets, it has drawn in excess of 10% of homes passed, and the numbers are considerably higher in new builds.

Scheduling/Programming

As of the present time, Escapade's schedule is composed entirely of movie presentations. Bold movies, bawdy movies, fighting movies, sultry movies and sexy movies.

Rainbow states that while Escapade provides more than enough excitement to satisfy the most demanding adult viewers, it also meets community standards.

No morning or afternoon presentations are aired so that children are not able to watch Escapade during the daytime while parents are at work. Programming is scheduled only in the evening hours when adults are generally home.

In any given month, approximately 85 to 90% of Escapade's movies are rated "R" with the remainder being "PG." There is plenty of nudity, adult language, highly suggestive situations, and nonstop action, but there is never any "X" rated material.

Premiere presentations of new movie products are first seen on Friday and Saturday evenings each week and from that point are then moved to other days. Certain movies that start in the preceeding month continue to play the following month, and encore presentation movies that played at least six months previously are brought back for return engagements.

Every week Escapade screens titles that are not likely to be shown on any other movie channel—and won't be shown anywhere else on commercial television. These features are scheduled during prime time, instead of late at night, and the choice includes at least sixteen movies every month, half of them new to the schedule. For viewing convenience, all films are replayed on different days at different times. Occupying Transponder 4V (CATV Format #7) on Comstar D-2, Escapade offers seven-days-a-week of programming from 8:00 p.m. until 6:00 a.m. (ET).

S.P.A.C.E.

The Society for Private and Commercial Earth Stations (SPACE) is a relatively young organization founded in January 1980 to deal with the world's second oldest problem—the right of people to have access to information. Each time technology has made great leaps as with the pen, the printing press, the telephone, movies, radio, television and cable, to mention a few, our society has changed for better or worse, laws have appeared or changed, and private and governmental monopolies on information have sprung up and been killed one at a time.

The orderly and planned development of geostationary communication satellites over a 20 year period coupled with the usual, unexpected advances in physics and engineering which have made inexpensive (less than $3,000) TV receive only (TVRO) terminals widely available have again started this legal and legislative cycle. The most recent example of this parallel to the present—cable operators insisting on their right to information and in some cases their right to have it free since it was broadcast! This led to lawsuits, court cases, legislation and the formation of several national cable organizations dedicated to protecting cable's interest.

Membership

SPACE is the first, and at present only, organization or trade association formed to protect the interests and rights of access of manufacturers, distributors, dealers and end users. Presently, SPACE has a membership ranging from nearly all of the major and minor microwave and TVRO manufacturers to a broad base of individuals who have either built their own or purchased complete systems. Users include not only individuals but satellite master TV antenna (SMATV) systems serving living complexes such as apartment houses and condominiums, and cable systems. SPACE welcomes the membership and participation of anyone interested in the present and future of satellite distribution and broadcasting.

Taking A Stand . . . Or Two

SPACE has taken two stands: first, every individual has the right to receive any information which is transmitted through the air and, second, that information which is intended to be paid for must be paid for—not stolen. Each of these stands evokes strong, sometimes emotional, often irrational and historically forgetful responses both positive and negative!

The Public's Airwaves

That the airwaves are public property and that the Federal Communications Commission is there to protect the public interest is clear. The very basis of our contry's strength is freedom—freedom of information guaranteed by our constitution and by many laws and legislation. Writing as president of SPACE and as an engineer, not a lawyer, I see section 605 of the communications act as an affirmation of that freedom and a threat to those who would abuse it. The abusers are those who steal or use information intended for others for their personal financial benefit. The satellite system makes this freedom a two-edged sword, for some of the users who feel that they have invested an immense amount of money in a "private pipeline" only to find that there are other large players sitting only one transponder away who are giving away TVRO terminals so that they will have more viewers. Thus, technology has moved faster than the socio-political system—again.

That this freedom is important is exemplified by the appearance of Jacques Costeau in Cable News Network advertisements extolling the virtues of CNN as compared to the horrors of government monopolized communications. Ralph Nader, in an appearance at a SPACE meeting in Washington, D.C., further amplified this point of view when he discussed the monopoly held on our "free communications" by the networks and their sponsors.

Benefiting From SPACE Program

Finally, in discussing whether the satellite system is appropriate to regard as a "private pipeline" it should be noted that, while there is a lot of private money in the commercial satellites and the system that supports them, the research and development that made it all possible was, in the main, federally funded with tax dollars. Even the growth and spectacular technological advances made by microwave companies came from Department of Defense contracts—not from privately invested dollars. This is not a criticism of these companies, it is a perfect example of how splendidly the American system works and of how the entire nation can benefit from such "boondoggles" as the Space Program.

Buying and Selling

The question of money, of paying for the programming is particularly touchy to say the least. At least one congressman has advised SPACE that we "are a bunch of boy scouts" and that we should take whatever comes out of the sky and refuse to pay. We have individual members who also feel that way. To our knowledge we have no members with commercial interests who do not want to pay. The fact is that cable is growing at a rapid rate and even the most glowing estimates of the earth station population for individual homes places the ratio at less than .005. Thus the loss of revenue to major suppliers of video is much less than the estimated 10 to 20 percent of cable customers who literally steal the premium service from the cable operator!

SPACE is not happy, however, with having the right to receive fall into a crack simply because the potential revenue to the suppliers is too small to be good business, for, eventually, the theft of service from MDS and cable operators will become serious enough and technology

Wilson Microwave Systems

Satellite Antennas

Wilson Microwave Systems uses the latest state of the ar method of manufacturing the parabolic designed antenna Resistance to distortation and instability is increased wit the addition of a full screen mesh sealed within the ¼" thick fiberglass.

The 4pc construction of the dish provides easier handling less installation time, and greatly reduced shipping costs.

For those areas that require a larger dish than the 3.3 meter, Wilson offers an addition that will increase the siz to 4.0 meter. It is easily bolted to the outer edge and main tains the strength, while increasing the performance.

The Wilson antenna package includes antenna, Vari-Mount manual satellite locators, LNA/rotor mount, rotor, and rectangular feed horn.

Wilsons unique "Vari-Mount" provides the easiest installation and mounting method available today. Simply dig 4 holes with either a post-hole digger or an auger, 4 feet deep. Form a base with 2 x 4's for a finished look, then insert the four furnished bolts. Fill with 12 - 14 bags of Redi-Mix and it is finished.

With the exclusive 4 point Williams' mount, you are assured a quicker installation and that the antenna will be more securely fastened to the Vari-Mount. The antenna struts aid in stabilizing the fiberglass for operational reception in winds of up to 50 - 60 MPH.

A ball bearing race allows easy turning of the antenna in changing to the different satellites. A scale is included on the base to assist in their location.

The Vari-Mount comes standard with manual satellite locaters in the form of gear driven hand cranks. Easily turned, they offer the most economically accurate method of rapidly moving to a different satellite.

14 INTERNATIONAL WEEK IN REVIEW

Endangered Species.

Habitat.

In an earlier America, every living thing enjoyed its rightful place. Our abundant country provided wild animals with every environment needed for their survival—green forests, lush wetlands, untouched deserts, and clear, free-flowing rivers.

Over the years we have made good use of our lands, waterways and other resources. But we have also needlessly defiled and destroyed many of them. Today, many of these areas, like some of the animals they once supported, are endangered species.

A Public Service of This Magazine & The Advertising Council

We've come a long way.

Our nursing and health services have covered a lot of ground since we started 100 years ago. We began by caring for the wounded on the battlefield. Later, we called on the ill at home. Then, as we trained and recruited more nurses, we began to develop programs to teach people how to help themselves and their families.

Today, we give instruction in home nursing, disease prevention, parenting, child care, nutrition, managing stress, preparation for disaster, health maintenance—all of this in addition to providing services to the community on an as-needed basis.

But we're not saying this to pat ourselves on the back. We just want you to know that if you need help, we're ready.

Red Cross: Ready for a new century.

compounded by two interfering carriers, which is a common occurrence.

5. The interference is often made worse by reflecting off a nearby building, water tower, or other large (smooth) surfaces (don't worry about guy wires, power lines, etc.). In this case, simply moving the earth terminal to the other side of the head-end building may be the cure.

6. These carriers are polarized in the same manner as the satellites: try rotating the feed to reduce the problem (best done with a spectrum analyzer). The result will probably be negligible but it's worth a try.
   The problem may be entirely due to poor polarization isolation of the feed. For Satcom I, at the time of this writing, this would likely affect only channels 2, 6, 8, 10, and/or 7, 9 and 23. Try rotating the feed. If a spectrum analyzer is used, look for the adjacent channels 20 MHz away.

Prescription

If all the above suggestions have failed to correct your problem, let's get to the point of this article—filtering. Using a Standard Communications Agile 24 receiver with external trap option, I've had a great deal of success trapping out terrestrial microwave around the country. (These traps are inserted in the 70 MHz IF stream at 60 and/or 80 MHz as shown in the block diagram of Fig 1.)

One of the keys to filtering success is to get filters that are not too wide or too narrow. A filter wider than 3 MHz at its 3 dB points will take out too much satellite signal; one narrower than 1 MHz will not remove enough interference. It is also essential to have a fine tune adjustment on the receiver to center the interference in the filter. (The alternative is to try to retune the filter which without a spectrum analyzer, usually ends up as a badly detuned filter.) Photos 1 and 2 show the result of filtering out a single interfering carrier that was just a few dB's lower than the satellite carrier. Photos 3 and 4 are before and after filtering an interfering carrier that was a few dB's stronger than the satellite carrier (see spectrum analyzer photo insert) since these improvements are subjective, it should be pointed out that for a C/I ratio of approximately 8 dB's or greater, inserting a filter will not improve things, especially during scenes with heavy modulation, i.e., dark to light transitions, bright colors and lettering. Under these conditions the filter itself may cause sparkles. Further, don't expect the receiver to fully meet its baseband specs with a filter between its chrominance and luminance. Finally, if the interference is 20 dB's or higher than the satellite carrier it becomes increasingly difficult to suppress it. For one thing, if the receiver has an AFC circuit (and most do), it will tend to lock on the interference and the filter ends up trapping out the satellite signal! (The standard receivers AFC can be switched out—a nice feature).

That leaves about 90% of interference situations where the 60/80 MHz trap can be an effective cure for an otherwise untreatable disease and can even produce a "saleable" picture where there was "snow" before.

which can be applied for credit toward a college degree, follow close behind, in a relative tie with old movies and religious, inspirational programming for third place.

From the point of view of National Entertainment Television, Inc., the Network has attempted to reach these separate and unique viewer markets by offering first-run and R-rated subscription television services, commercial programming, and non-commercial educational seminars during various parts of the programming day. Figure 2 presents NET's week day programming planned schedule, serving the four continental time zones, using both east-coast and west-coast satellite transponders.

The Opening Night™ service will be broadcast from 6:00 p.m. to midnight Eastern Standard Time. A typical evening's fare consists of three first-run, full-length, uncut commercial-free motion pictures recently released for theatrical distribution. Opening Night™ is a pay-television service which the affiliate offers to subscribers on an STV basis for $15 per month. Opening Night™ movies are repeated several times, and the service is similar to the other popular movie channels, but cleared for use by the LPTV stations. Figure 3 presents a list of typical Opening Night™ movies to be offered. This list was selected from those first-run motion pictures available to be aired in June/July 1981.

The second STV movie service to be offered as an additional tier of programming, is Le Club Sensual™, presenting R-rated adult movies from 12 midnight to 4:00 a.m. EST. This service can be provided by affiliates on a stand-alone pay-TV basis (for $7.95 a month), or in conjunction with Opening Night™ (for an additional $5.95 monthly subscriber charge). Typical R-rated films to be aired on Le Club Sensual™ include those as listed in Figure 4.

The Shining
Brubaker
Divine Madness
Smokey and the Bandit II
Urban Cowboy
Honeysuckle Rose
One Trick Pony
The Great Santini
Hopscotch
The Rose
The Black Hole
The Conversation

Coal Miner's Daughter

During the afternoon hours from 12 noon to 4:00 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) the National Entertainment Television network will offer a unique National Open University™ service, similar in design and concept to the highly successful British Open University. In conjunction with several institutions of higher education and educational programming organizations, NET will provide as a public service, on a non-scrambled, non-commercial basis, program air time to enable individuals throughout the United States to take fully accredited college courses in an integrated and structured program, leading toward an undergraduate degree. There are literally hundreds of thousands of interested people who would like to finish their college education but, for monetary or physical and travel limitations, are not able to do so. National Open University™ will provide these people with an opportunity to obtain a recognized undergraduate degree upon completing approximately 40 college seminars, transmitted by NET nationwide. Individual viewers may elect to audit the courses by simply watching the programs themselves, or enroll in the affiliated degree program which includes student workbook materials, course text, homework by mail, and examinations provided under the auspices of one of the education institutions participating in the National Open University™ project. We at NET believe this educational programming to be a vitally important service to the country, and consider it to be one of the fundamental public services that both NET and the LPTV broadcasters can provide. (See Figure 5).

During the morning hours from 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon (Eastern Standard Time), Network programming will be commercially sponsored. From 6:00 a.m. until 8:00 a.m., a national news service, the Morning News™, is planned to be offered in conjunction with several national news organizations. From 8:00 a.m. until 12 noon, four unique one-hour dial-in viewer-participation talk shows will be broadcast live. Depending on the time zone and specific show, the programs will originate either from San Francisco (western time zones), New York City (eastern time zones), or Hollywood (national audience show).

The four talk shows are:

1. Startalk™, a national live talk show from Hollywood, interviews the leading motion picture and television stars of the day. Startalk™ will enable viewers nationwide to call a toll-free telephone number to actually speak to their favorite stars on the air. Similar in structure to a national radio call-in talk show, Startalk extends this concept to the visual medium of television.
2. Politalk™ will provide live east and west coast interviews with the leading politicians and current-events newsmakers of the day. Eastern and western audiences again will be able to call in directly to the show, talking with the guests on the air.
3. Healthline™ is a daily live talk show with both east and west coast feeds, whose talk show hosts are practicing medical doctors. Healthline™ will discuss the latest news in the world of health and medicine, and will provide network viewers with the opportunity to talk with the hosts and their guests about topics of their interests.
4. Critic at Large™ brings eastern and western audiences live interviews with leading writers, artists, and other literary figures who are guests in the San Francisco and New York studios.

From 4:00 a.m. to 6:00 a.m. in the morning, the Wee Hours Movie™, will be run, featuring classic comedies, adventures, mysteries, and westerns. The audience? That classic but steady viewer: the insomniac!

During The Morning News™ and talk shows, the 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. (EST) local programming period, and the Wee Hours Movie™, commercials will be carried for approximately 12 minutes per hour. The Network will operate in a non-scrambled, freemode during these times, totally 10 hours per day. See Figure 6 for a typical program and commercial hourly event "clock". Eight minutes per hour of programming will be provided by the Network, and four minutes are available for local origination by the Affiliates. The Affiliate will receive six seconds each 15 minutes of the programming clock, at 14 minutes into the quarter hour. The Network will receive 60 seconds of commercial time at 6 minutes into the quarter hour, and 60 seconds of commercial time at 13 minutes into each quarter hour. Over the 10 hour commercial programming day, this provides the Affiliate with a full 40 minutes of commercial time, which will allow the Affiliate to carry as much as 120 20-second spots.

At the option of the Affiliate, commercial origination can be provided by either camera with announcer (talking head), a film-train or video tape feed, or via an automated camera/slide commercial insert system which is triggered by a Network cue-tone transmitted one second before the Network breaks to local Affiliate time. Using this automated camera/slide system, the Affiliate can sell commercials in each local market, using the minimum of equipment and for a very low cost. CATV systems have used similar "revolving-wheel" slide display systems to sell commercials and provide public service announcements (PSA's) for many years.

During the one minute intervals when the Affiliate would be originating local commercials, the Network feed will consist of upcoming Network promotions covering the pay television service as well as National Entertainment Television's commercial programming. These Network promos are designed to promote the Affiliate's channel, and the user will be encouraged to call a toll-free 800 number to order the STV pay television service mentioned in the commercials. Thus, if an Affiliate elects not to originate local commercials during its own air time, the NET-provided commercials may be carried instead.

Full Network Support Services

Based on analysis of the LPTV marketplace from discussions with LPTV applicants and NET Affiliates, there appear to be two kinds of low power applicants: those organizations which are looking for a "turn-key" full service network, and those organizations locally supported (many of whom have been operating television translators for a number of years). In the latter case, the Affiliate is often looking to purchase (or be paid for carrying) satellite programming provided by a national programming organization. The majority of NET's existing Affiliates are of the first type; the Network is now entering discussions with the second.

NET's Full-Service Affiliate Program includes complete billing and collection functions for the STV programming service, the installation and maintenance of the STV decoder box installed in the customer's house, assistance in financing the Affiliate's transmitter and station equipment, the provision of a national marketing force to promote the Network programming throughout the Affiliate territories, support through a national advertising campaign including television listings and regional magazine advertising keyed to each Affiliate area, and a national toll-free 800 number service desk to handle customer problems and new order inquiries. Under a technical support agreement between NET and AT&T, the Affiliate's TVRO earth station can be installed and maintained by AT&T Long Lines, providing the Affiliate with the immediate high-quality service which AT&T is well noted for.

In addition, National Entertainment Television Inc. will provide its Affiliates with complete promotional support materials including 20-second, 30-second, and one minute TV spots with Affiliate's customized tags, National Entertainment Television logos, and camera-ready copy for use in local publications whose ads are placed directly by the Affiliate. Subscriber program guides listing the upcoming pay-TV and commercial programming on the Network are mailed to each subscriber in the Affiliate's territory. A national co-op advertising fund is being established to enable NET to assist in the underwriting of local advertisements placed by the Affiliate independently. National advertising support in the print media will be paid for directly by NET. Annual Affiliate sales contests, marketing, engineering, and management seminars, and annual Affiliate conventions are also supported by National Entertainment Television. The second annual meeting, scheduled for August, 1982, will be held in San Francisco. The third annual meeting will be held in Bermuda.

By participating in NET's full service turn-key Affiliate program, complete engineering, sales and service, marketing, billing and collection, and management functions are provided by the Network on behalf of the Affiliate. Several Affiliate groups have elected not to include local origination facilities in their construction plans, but to take NET's programming in its entirety on a completely-automated feed basis. Other Affiliates, on the other hand, will likely originate their own programming from local studios, and participate more actively in marketing the Network's pay television programming within their Grade-B serving territories.

Pay TV Pricing to Subscribers

Under the present subscriber rate package, viewers of the STV programming services can elect to rent or buy their individually-addressable decoder boxes directly from NET. Monthly rental will be approximately $5, and can be automatically applied to the viewer's Visa or Mastercard. In the event the subscriber elects to purchase the decoder box outright, this charge can be billed to the Mastercard or Visa bank cards, or financed on a monthly purchase plan provided by NET directly.

Monthly subscription fees for the Opening Night™ service are currently projected at $14.95 per decoder. The Le Club Sensual™ service will be offered at an additional $4.95 per month when taken in conjunction with the Opening Night™ service, or for $7.95 when subscribed as a stand-alone service. Special events, such as national boxing matches, etc., will be billed on a per-event basis ranging from $2 to $10.

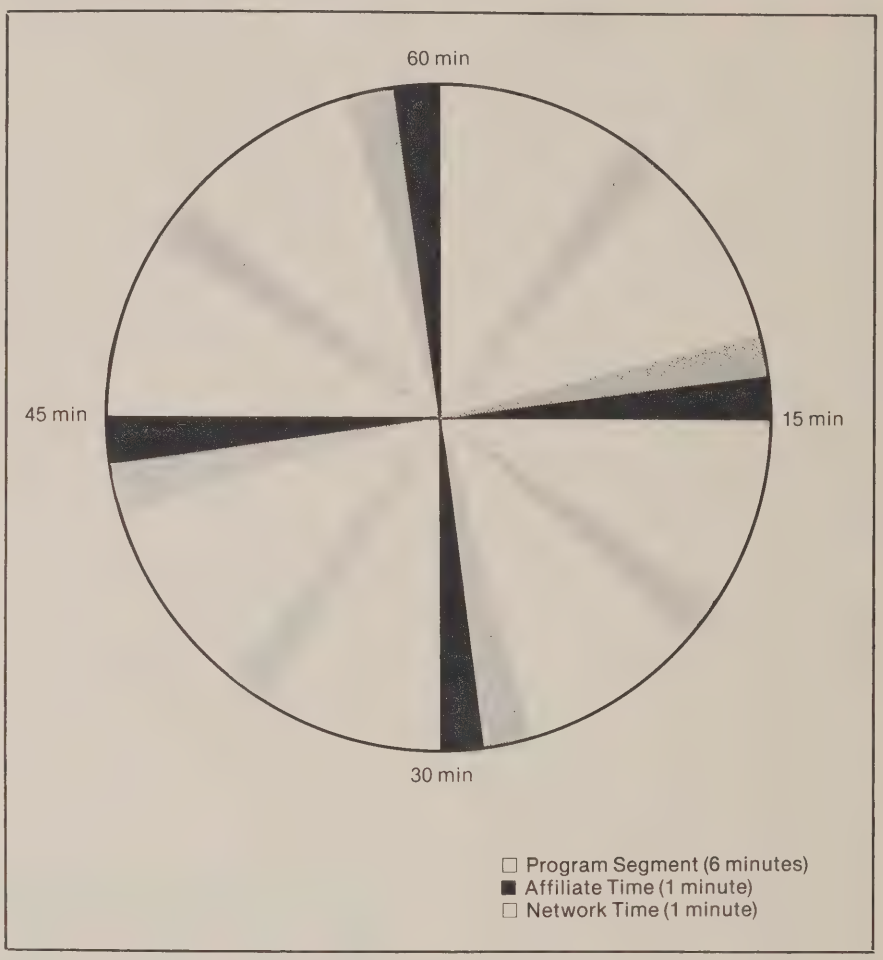

Fig. 6—Commercial Hourly Event "Clock"

NET's Addressable Decoder Box

To enable a multi-tier flexible pay television service to be offered nationally, NET will utilize a five-level individually-addressable multi-processor-based decoder box to allow the scrambled pay television signals to be properly received at each subscriber's home.

The use of this form of intelligent decoder mechanism, while initially more costly, provides significant flexibility in billing, programming, and box-control functions. Each decoder unit has its own unique internal serial number identification, and can be "addressed" to turn on and off for various service tiers at various times of the day directly from the NET Subscriber Control Computer located in San Francisco. These special subscriber data control signals are transmitted simultaneously along with the television programming over the satellite transponder, and are transparent to the subscriber. By using this form of instantaneous control mechanism, a subscriber can contact the NET National Subscription Center over the toll-free 800 number to view an upcoming special event program or to add an additional tier of service, and within a matter of minutes, the NET Subscriber Control Computer can unlock that subscriber's decoder to allow the new programming to be received. At the same time, the NET Subscriber Control Computer will communicate with the North American Bankcard Center to automatically debit the subscriber's Visa or Mastercard account, immediately billing the subscriber for the service.

In the event that a decoder box is stolen, it is a simple matter for the National Subscription Center to deauthorize that particular box's serial number, and effectively removing that box from the viewing audience.

The subscriber decoder boxes will also provide for an electronic "Newspaper of the Air" teletext function. This feature will allow up to 200 pages of national and regional news, weather maps and information, sports summaries and scores, emergency medical information, recipe of the day, puzzle of the day (for the kids), and other alpha-numeric and alpha-geometric information to be displayed on the subscriber's television set either separately, or superimposed with Network program.

The teletext feature will also allow closed captioning services to be provided for the deaf, and emergency bulletin news services to be superimposed on the viewer's screen during a crisis.

Finally, the teletext service will allow the subscriber to have an accurate real-time television listing of the day's Network programming as carried on the national television channel.

Further extension of the teletext service (to be transmitted over an unused retrace "blanking" interval) could allow the alpha-numeric data service to interface with a user-provided microcomputer to extend the National Open University™ seminars into a more interactive mode, as well as to "download" computer games and other home computer-based information, independent of the normal television programming.

Finally, the decoder boxes will provide an audio "barker" channel which will operate during the scrambled-mode broadcasting portions of the day. In the STV mode, when an ordinary television set tunes in the Network program, instead of receiving the first run movie service, the subscriber views a garbled and distorted picture, and hears a continually-repeating message informing the subscriber of the first run movie he or she is presently missing, and urging the subscriber to call the toll-free 800 number at the NET National Subscription Center to obtain his own decoder box the next day.

Because the NET encryption scheme provides for two audio channels (the barker channel and the special pay TV audio channel which can only be received by the subscriber's decoder box), the Network has stereo audio capability inherently built into it, allowing for special stereo programs to be aired nationwide, using the decoder box and the subscriber's own stereo high fidelity system.

One additional special feature possible with subscription television, but not directly associated with the decoder box itself, is the 3-D movie. Since the population of STV viewers is precisely and accurately known, it is possible to ship each viewer a set of special viewing glasses (multiple sets if required) to allow 3-D movies to be transmitted using the red-blue color separation technique. While this part of the Network programming is still in embroyonic state, we think it would be great fun (and a bit newsworthy) to carry some of the classic 3-D movies on a periodic basis as a special bonus feature for the STV subscribers!

LPTV in the Future

National Entertainment Television has created an integrated package of network programs and affiliate support services which we believe will be well received both by the viewing public and the LPTV operator. NET's programming, consisting of first run and adult-rated feature length movies, live viewer-participation talk shows, open university programming, and the other shows, have been selected based on a careful analysis of what the television viewer wants to see. NET's satellite feed is available not only for low-power TV stations, but also mini-cable television systems, MDS carriers, and satellite-fed master antenna television systems in hotels, hospitals, apartment buildings, mobile home parks, universities, etc.

Unlike some industry pundits, National Entertainment Television, Inc. believes that the future of television broadcasting and cablecasting is rosy indeed, with the new narrowcasting technologies offering a greater choice to more viewers at lower cost. Looking back on the golden days of the 50's, when only three national networks were in operation and the tube's options were terribly limited, a television viewer in the mid-80's will find a veritable smorgasbord of choices available.

Up and Running LPTV Program Sources

Survey

In order to conduct a survey of potential program suppliers for LPTV, we contacted the satellite programming services that are currently supplying the CATV, MDS and STV markets. The results of this survey were generally disappointing with the majority of the suppliers stating that because of copyright, they could not supply this market (i.e., HBO's contracts with movie studios allow them only to distribute to CATV systems and certain MDS operations. They cannot distribute the majority of their programming to MDS or to LPTV and are also generally locked out of apartment and condominium businesses, however, they can distribute to hotels and motels via CATV or direct satellite feed). The other comment most generally heard was that they didn't realize that this marketplace existed.

There are two cases where suppliers are serving the LPTV market and note is made of them since at this stage of development, suppliers are few and far between. It is expected that a number of program suppliers for this market will grow during the next six months.

Independent TV Stations

The following is a copy of a letter from one of the three satellite microwave delivered independent TV stations to a translator district located in the Western United States granting permission to rebroadcast their signal via satellite delivery to an LPTV station (note that real names have been deleted and substituted with "XYZ"):

"This will acknowledge your request of March 24, 1981 requesting consent by XYZ Broadcasting Company for the rebroadcast of the television signal of station XYZ over the following translators.

XYZ hereby grants consent pursuant to section 325 (a) of the Communication Act of 1934, as amended, to the rebroadcast of the XYZ signal by translators.

This consent is granted on the condition that XYZ shall not be liable to you for the grant or revocation of this consent; that the translators are operated in conformity with applicable federal, state and local laws and regulations; that the signal will not be used for any purpose other than rebroadcast by the translator without charge to any party; and that this consent may not be assigned.

Third parties may hold copyright or other legal rights in the programs broadcast by station XYZ; this consent to rebroadcast shall not be deemed to cover such rights of third parties or to authorize any use of any programs under copyright. This consent does not constitute a representation by XYZ that it has authority to permit the translator to use the programs."

Editors Note: One of the satellite delivered independent TV stations has conditionally granted permission to a non-profit translator district to rebroadcast its signal and in fact there are as many as 30 translators that are being fed with satellite delivered signals.

will become advanced and economic enough that scrambling will be a reasonable alternative. This will be advanced scrambling wherein operators can turn on and off the units depending on whether or not bills have been paid. This will probably be accompanied by strong federal legislation regarding commerce in decoders, etc. Thus unless the rights of earth station owners are recognized in an affirmative manner we will have three classes of citizens watching TV—those who have paid their bills, those who haven't, and those who aren't allowed to.

Goals

Simply stated in conclusion, the goals of SPACE are to assure access of every American to the information coming from our satellite system and to do it in a way that supports our economic system. The idea that a monopoly, be it government or private, or poor business practices would exclude anyone from legal access is simply not acceptable.

You can help to mold SPACE into an effective spokesman for the entire earth station industry by joining as an individual, corporate or sustaining member. Your membership will help assure that the educational process and the fight for fair legislation to ensure access and stop piracy will be able to continue as strongly this year as it did in the last.

S.P.A.C.E.

Taylor Howard, current president of SPACE, is a professor of Electrical Engineering at Stanford University. He has been involved in space research using radio and radar techniques on meteor trails, the moon and other planets since before the first earth satellites. His major involvement in recent years has been with NASA contracts as Principal Investigator or Scientist on the Apollo missions to the moon and Mariner missions to Venus and Mercury. He is presently leading the radio propagation team for the Galileo mission to Jupiter in 1985.

Professor Howard's interest in communication satellites arose both from industrial consulting and from the necessity to move scientific data via Intelsat from such places as Antarctica. The interest in satellite video happened as a "busman's holiday" when he put what is acknowledged as the first homebuilt private terminal on the air in August of 1976. He came out of the closet in 1979 with the publication of a do-it-yourself manual after the existence of the terminal became known through a "TV Guide" article by Bob Cooper. Since that time over 5,000 copies of the manual have been sold and parts of the design are now evident in nearly all of the satellite TV receivers on the market.

He is presently on partial leave from the University consulting full time and developing receiving, transmitting, and test equipment and antenna hardware for the TVRO industry. After having been threatened with "crushing" by a video supplier he was heard to reminisce fondly about student riots and tear gas.

Hardware and Station Costs For LPTV

PART V, B

Introduction

The hardware used in the low power television industry is a mixture of hardware that has been used for a number of years in the CATV, Translator and Broadcast industries. The major component of an LPTV station (and the sub-system) that makes LPTV economically viable is the TVRO earth station.

In the typical LPTV station costs, we have specified a dish size/LNA noise-figure that will deliver almost studio-quality signal-to-noise pictures, while still maintaining reasonable economic pricing. We have used dual LNA's and a frequency agile receiver that will accept a BCD drive from our time/tone controller. Once a variety of LPTV programming becomes available on satellite, it will be possible to automatically mix a number of services in order to structure an LPTV broadcast day.

Attempting to define a typical station, we took into consideration that in the short term most of the stations built will be in rural rather than urban America. Many of these towns do not have a CATV system, let alone a TV station. The station that was configured has been designed so that two or more satellite feeds can be used and the operator has the option of using either his color camera or a data-text generator to create local advertising spots. It would also be possible to use the color camera to provide live local news in 15-minute time slots at 12:00 noon and 6:00 p.m.

Time/tone switching allows complete control and flexibility in addition to permitting unattended operation. The unit that many people have been specifying is manufactured by Channelmatic and has the ability to perform all the functions required today and in the future. Since the majority of Western translators are on mountain peaks, a mountain top location is in order. Because of this location an STL link will be required. However, some cost saving is generated since mountain heights allow use of 100 watt UHF in place of the 1 Kw unit normally specified.

Typical LPTV Station Costs

Proposed Programming Format

Daytime: Syndicated satellite fed with local advertising inserts (i.e., 30 & 60 second spots).

Night: Scrambled premium movie package.

Local advertising inserts will be handled using VCR and/or data text generator.

Optional Use of Color Camera: Providing noon and 6:00 p.m. live local news.

loaded with the stuff. Video materials, as a means of record promotion, are much more popular in Europe than in the U.S., however. He expects the companies and artists to provide MTV with materials free of charge in return for air play—much the same way radio stations operate.

Robert McGroarty, Senior Vice President, Marketing and Sales, explains, "We felt the August 1 launch date would be ideal for operators as well as advertisers. Based on the response from both, we were correct. By launching August 1, we avoid the heavy broadcast television fall premiers, and advertisers looking for viable alternative vehicles during the schedule of summer repeats have enthusiastically approached us about the channel. MTV not only provides the advertiser and cable operator the opportunity to reach a targeted audience, but the summer is certainly a most attractive time to introduce a service that is targeted to the youth market."

Gathering Data

Four national telephone surveys were conducted in order that WASEC's research department could evaluate acceptance of MTV's concept among consumers and cable operators.

One of these surveys sampled opinions from the top 300 cable systems, testing interest in the concept of a 24-hour advertiser supported cable service featuring contemporary music. The results were emphatic. Over one half of the system managers surveyed said they would add MTV as soon as possible; while most of the others cited only a lack of channel capacity as the reasons for delay.

"The data gathered from the surveys had aided in development of a roadmap for our programming and marketing departments as well as our advertising agency," says Jordan Rost, Vice President, Research for WASEC. "To the best of our knowledge, as a result of the surveys, MTV is the most researched new cable service before its launch."

The fourth of their four surveys is the most detailed one: determining what prospective viewers wanted from the service as well as their musical tastes, listening, viewing and record buying habits.

Six hundred respondents rated musical groups covering every trend and genre in contemporary music. There were questions on overall format, the appearance and delivery of the on-camera video jocks (MTV's equivalent of disc jockeys) and the acceptance of commercials within the format. "From the data gathered, we were able to break down the target age group into different segments," reports Jordan Rost. "Using this information, the programming department can create a service that will please a wide range of tastes. Different people can like MTV for different reasons."

Transmission Technique

WASEC has developed an optimized transmission technique to provide superior audio, which complements the channel's stereo format and meets the needs of cable operators. For reception and delivery of the stereo sound, a cable system need only add a "Stereo Transmission Processor."

The Processor consists of two components which receive the signal from the satellite and launches it into the cable on the available FM frequency of the affiliate's choice. Two manufacturers are currently producing stereo processors which meet or exceed WASEC's goals for the affiliate of low cost, high quality and readily available hardware. The companies are:

Leaming Industries
180 McCormick Avenue
Costa Mesa, CA 92626

Wegener Communications, Inc.
150 Technology Park, Suite 1
Norcross, GA 20092

"The cost of the Processor will be approximately $1,400 to the affiliate," according to Andy Setos, Vice President, Engineering and Operations. An initial investment which can be recouped through FM hook-ups in subsribers' homes. "By elimination of interference, cable has always been able to offer a better signal than other means of distribution," continued Setos, "therefore, the stereo signal's delivery process has to be of a quality to take advantage of these unique capabilities."

"By design, this Stereo Transmission Processor," concludes Setos, "plus the utilizing of stereo masters and the sophisticated 'state of the art' hardware at our Network Operations Center, allows the cable operator to provide subscribers high fidelity, true stereo sound. One which will do justice to the most discriminating audiofile's component system."

All MTV programming will be transmitted via Satcom F-1, Transponder #11 in stereophonic sound.

Advertising

MTV will be advertiser supported and free to the operator. Each hour on MTV will contain eight commercial minutes, six of which are network positions and two of which are available to cable operators for local advertisers. These local advertising dollars offer an additional revenue source.

Selling the six minutes per hour allotted to national advertisers (an additional two minutes is designated for local adver-

2. "The cable operator should be responsible to correct interference at the cable distribution system and at the subscriber's set."
3. "The first-come, first-served principle should govern conditions of interference between a low power station and reception to a cable television headend. Where possible, a solution should be found by mutual agreement upon the lowest cost solution, and the sharing of any burdens from taking corrective action."

Who Bears The Burden?

These rules have clearly placed the burden of proof that objectionable interference will result from an LPTV authorization, upon the cable TV operators. Should interference result from actual operations, where the LPTV station is operating within FCC technical standards, the cable system will be at least partly, if not solely responsible for eliminating the interference. Thus "preventive medicine" becomes the best protection method available to cable operators. By objecting to an LPTV application before authorization occurs, often a solution can be reached by mutual agreement without any interruption of service. But how can a cable operator keep up with the thousands of LPTV applications?

Interference Analysis Available

There are consulting engineering firms such as Comsearch, which maintain extensive data bases containing all the engineering data necessary to perform such interference analysis. Calculations can be made using the LPTV locations, transmit frequency, effective radiated power (ERP), terrain data and other necessary information to predict when the potential for the types of interference discussed above exists. Cable clients would be notified on a monthly basis of all applications within 50 miles of their facilities, and the results of the interference analysis performed on these applications. By subscribing to the protection service Comsearch offers, a cable system can react to a potentially harmful LPTV application while it appears on public notice by filing a petition to deny. This allows for a much less costly solution than if the LPTV station is licensed and operating when the problem is discovered.

Peaceful Coexistence

To conclude, while the future of LPTV and the rules under which this new "Community TV" will operate are still very tentative, the massive interest shown during the initial six-month period would surely seem to indicate that LPTV in some form is destined to become part of the broadcast scene. Through careful planning and monitoring of LPTV stations and cable facilities, these two services can peacefully coexist, interference free, in the same environment.

Debbie Durham hosts Consumer Inquiry for MSN.

MSN
MODERN SATELLITE NETWORK

Modern Satellite Network

When Hearst/ABC puts BETA on the air in January, it will share Transponder 22 during the daytime with Modern Satellite Network which has been broadcasting via Satcom I for more than two and a half years.

MSN Director Jay Campbell said his network is working on the acquisition of two more hours a day of satellite time and that it would program its three hours a day in a manner that was compatible with BETA. "We would like the viewer and cable operator to perceive our programming and Hearst/ABC's as two parts of a seven-hour block of women's programming," Campbell said.

MSN now broadcasts from noon to 5:00 p.m. (ET) on weekdays. Hearst/ABC has arranged to use the four hours beginning at 1:00 p.m. This fall, MSN expects to expand its broadcast day to seven hours, beginning at 10:00 a.m. (ET).

"We have always believed in the value of daytime cable programming," Campbell said. "Our broadcast day already includes a number of hours targeted specifically at women and we are taking steps to see that when BETA goes on the air next year we will be ready with similar programming."

MSN took the first step in that direction in May when it acquired The Home Shopping Show from its founder and producer Jim Perkins, who was cutting his ties with the show to accept the presidency of Hearst/ABC.

The Home Shopping Show is a talk show on which advertisers appear as guests and demonstrate products and services that viewers may order from home by mail or toll-free number. The show has been an exclusive feature on MSN since September 1980.

Other women's programming on MSN includes The Janet Sloan Aerobic Dancercize Program, a daily half-hour of aerobic dancing, the popular exercise-to-music regimen. Since the show started in January, the producers have taken more than 9,000 orders for an aerobic dancing record and book, most from the MSN airings, and they call the show "an absolute hit. The orders have not let up."

One of MSN's oldest shows is What's Cooking?, a recipe and kitchen tips program from the kitchen of R.T. French Co. in Rochester, New York.

The majority of MSN's programming for the balance of 1981 will continue to consist of sponsored films distributed by the network's parent company, Modern Talking Picture Service. Those films are packaged into four thematic, hosted series before broadcast—including Consumer Inquiry which is made up of films, short features and tips aimed specifically at the homemaker and consumer.

On the ESPN SportsCenter, women's sports receive much attention in the form of features on personalities and teams, in-depth interviews, highlights of games, and reporting of scores.

UTV Veep Attacks Cable Networks for Charging Fees to Cable Systems. Bill Padalino, Vice President of UTV, today criticized cable networks for charging fees to cable systems. "Cable television subscribers are losing out because cable systems must pay for basic programming," Padalino said. "It is time to scrap this outdated system of cable networks charging fees for programming. This practice may have been necessary in the early days of cable before we had sufficient advertising on the medium. There's no justification for it today. Each cable system is spending from 35 to 70 cents per month per subscriber for programming which they have no way of recouping," he said. "In addition, cable networks retain all national advertising revenues." The subscriber will be the ultimate beneficiary when the system changes, according to Padalino. Some of the funds now paid to cable networks can go into providing subscriber information and other services. Padalino added, "When there is more information to the subscriber, I believe overall cable viewing will increase, thus improving advertising revenues and subscriber retention."

The Movie Channel's 'Behind The Scenes' Giveaway. "Behind the Scenes," The Movie Channel's feature which provides viewers with a more intimate look at their favorite film stars in TMC's monthly guide and in on-air wrap arounds, is now a TMC giveaway contest. The "Behind the Scenes" giveaway, which is announced to subscribers in TMC's July guide, will take five winners (and their guests) behind the scenes to movie capitals around the world. Eligiblity requires only that a name and address oh a postcard to be sent to TMC by September 1, 1981. Winners will be announced October 15,1981. The grand prize is a seven day European tour to three film capitals in the world: London, Paris and Rome, along with a TMC duffle bag filled with $2,000 spending money. Second prize is a week for two in Honolulu on Waikiki, including $1,000 spending money and a dozen TMC beach towels. For the third prize, TMC will jet a viewer and guest to New York City for five days of touring in a chauffeur driven limosine. Nashville is the location for the fourth prize winner's weekend, including a pair of tickets to the Grand Ole Opry. And for 100 additional winners, TMC duffle bags will be awarded for on-location jaunts of their own.

tisers) is handled by sales staffs in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Based in New York, there is a traffic department to supervise the scheduling of ads and a continuity unit responsible for reviewing the compatibility of advertisements with MTV's programming and preview/review copy to make sure it meets standards and practice requirements.

The department has established a self-regulated code of standards and practices for both national and local advertising, enforcing standards to ensure that only responsible advertising runs on MTV. For example, no cigarette or hard liquor commercials will be permitted. MTV states, "We feel we have this responsibility to our advertisers as well as the cable operator and the subscriber."

A major attraction of MTV to both cable systems and advertisers is the untapped, young adult audience it is expected to draw. Reaching this target group is also important for record companies, whose principle promotional outlet until now has been radio. As with radio, the record companies will supply programming to MTV. Record companies however, will not be major advertisers on the channel, instead MTV will go after the Coppertones and Clearasils.

Affiliate Support

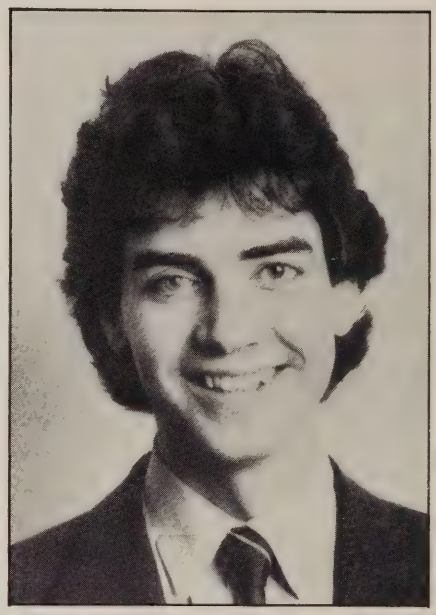
An Affiliate Relations unit specifically for MTV has currently been organized. The group, in close contact with Tom Freston, MTV's Director, Marketing, will generate, create and distribute support materials such as posters, counter cards, in store displays, bill stuffers and training tools exclusively for MTV.

One of the key training tools is the Affiliate Marketing Handbook—a step by step guide for affiliates in marketing MTV. This, like all WASEC informational materials, is designed and implemented by the Creative Services Department, headed by Director Sonja Suarez. Included in the handbook is a timetable and materials for newspaper advertising, broadcast advertising and direct mail pieces.

MTV affiliates already signed on have also received the first of a series of updates to be sent every two weeks. The updates include the latest news on production, programming, talent acquisition plus marketing and promotion information. To encourage local marketing efforts, every MTV affiliate on line as of the August 1 launch date will get a marketing allowance. In the field, WASEC's regional staff will actively work with affiliates, serving as consultants in all areas, ranging from product orientations and marketing strategies to advising affiliates on marketing expenditures.

One of the most important messages McGroarty wants to convey to affiliates is the extra revenue opportunities generated by MTV. Two minutes out of the eight minutes of advertising per hour are designated for local advertising. There's also money to be made from second-set installation and the monthly charge for the hookup of TV sets to FM stereo receivers since MTV's audio signal will be satellite fed in stereo. In their positions as consultants, regional representatives will visit local cable operators, advising them on inserting commercials, selling advertising time as well as conducting hands-on seminars in the installation of stereo hookups.

Also scheduled are local sales planning sessions bringing together key system managers to discuss ways of determining potential local revenue. Contacts will also be provided to local cable operators for co-op advertising with national tie-ins.



Robert W. Pittman
Vice President, Programming
WASEC

"If I had invented radio, I would have made sure that there was a place for new music . . . to keep whatever we do very fresh."

Supplementing the direct contact with affiliates will be an Advertising Sales Handbook, currently in production. "Even before MTV launches," says McGroarty, "we'll be creating support materials designed according to affiliate needs, as we've done for The Movie Channel and Nickelodeon affiliates." McGroarty offered an example. "Recently, Affiliate Relations conducted a survey of The Movie Channel affiliates asking them what support materials do you need, what don't you need? As a result, we created Focus, the first publication exclusively for door-to-door cable sales personnel, giving background information on the films seen on The Movie Channel. We plan similar efforts tailored to the needs of MTV and its affiliates."

Heavy Demand For New Wold-Visnews Service. In its first few days of operation, Wold-Visnews Broadcast Services supplied domestic and international broadcast journalists with news and satellite facilities that enabled them to provide live, on-the-scene coverage of breaking news stories. On Tuesday, June 16, the local evening newscast of KRON-TV San Francisco included two live reports from the Wold-Visnews facility on the 82nd floor of New York's Empire State Building. At 7:00 and 8:00 p.m. (ET), a KRON correspondent reported the latest developments in the UN debate on the Israel-Iraq situation and in the major league baseball strike. The feeds, which included pretaped inserts edited at the Wold-Visnews facility, were transmitted via satellite by Wold Communications.

On Wendesday and Thursday, the two British television networks, BBC and ITN, utilized the Wold-Visnews tape editing and transmission facilities to provide Great Britain and Europe extensive live and taped coverage of Prince Charles's visit to New York. A second Wold-Visnews facility, in the Hall of States Building, 300 yards from the Capitol in Washington, D.C., became operational July 1. Like the New York facility, this one, too, will offer out-of-town broadcasters fully equipped newsrooms and tape editing, playback and satellite transmission facilities. Wold-Visnews Broadcast Services is a joint venture of Wold Communications, Los Angeles, and Visnews, the London-based worldwide television news agency.

AGILE 24

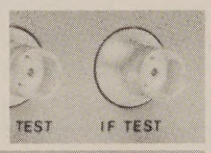
The satellite receiver you've been waiting for.

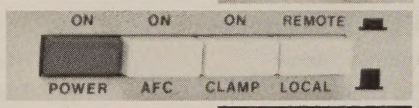
Now, from Standard Communications, comes the high-quality satellite receiver you've needed to expand your TVRO system. The AGILE 24M is a 24 channel stand-alone master receiver with enough gain to drive a hundred AGILE 24S Slave Receivers, and save you hundreds of dollars on each one.

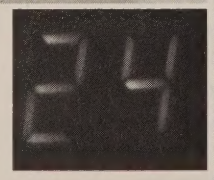
AGILE 24 utilizes a fully synthesized phase-lock-loop tuning system, a pre-selector tracking filter and a PLL demodulator. Threshold extension pulls the signal further out of the noise, and a special filter can be added that reduces terrestrial microwave interference. Since the AGILE 24S has "loop-thru," no external dividers are needed to add additional slave receivers. Therefore, system expansion is quick, easy, and economical.

Other standard features include a C/N meter, a channel number readout and an AGC/MGC switch for C/N measurements. The AGILE 24 is also compact (only 1¾" high), occupying only a single rack space.

You may select from such optional features as remote tuning... automatic polarity switching...2nd subcarrier demodulation...antenna-mounted down-converter...and more.







Standard Communications makes it easy to build or expand your system. Our "one-stop shopping" capability offers site survey, LNA, antennas, and other hardware and services to put you in operation.

For further information, or to arrange an on-site demonstration, write or call me, Keith Larson, Vice President, Special Products, Standard Communications Corp., P.O. Box 92151, Los Angeles, CA 90009; Telephone 213-532-5300. Or, see me in Booth 45, Satellite Communications Users Conference, August 19 through 21.

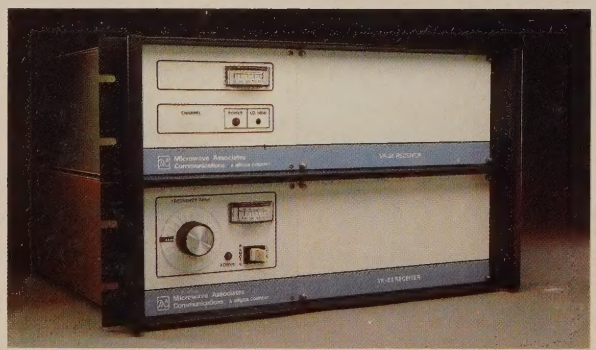
If you're expanding your video delivery system and want your new earth station equipment as soon as possible, call us. We have the TVRO systems you've been looking for.

And in less than 45 days, we can deliver your complete system. We have everything: antennas, receivers, cable modulators, LNAs, feed lines, power dividers and frequency coordination. All custom-designed with MAC technology to provide a cost-efficient, state-of-the-art operational system. As you probably know, we've already installed and serviced hundreds of earth station systems in the United States.



VR-3X: Tunes manually across 24 channels with a single screwdriver adjustment. VR-4X: 24 channel frequency agility with remote tuning option. Optional automatic vertical/horizontal polarization switching.

Our newest satellite receivers, the VR-3X and VR-4X, are frequency agile and have 24-channel capability. Both come as integral parts of our low cost, high performance TVRO system. Featured on both is a plug-in cable modulator option that you won't find on any other radio. It reduces rack space and clutter, simplifies wiring and costs substantially less than buying a separate modulator.

All MAC features are designed for configuration flexibility. Now and in the future. So you don't worry about having a system on your hands that's old before its time.

And since we provide single-source accountability for your total system needs, you can count on faster, better service. Because you won't be dealing with a horde of different suppliers, all claiming the problem is someone else's. Just call us. Our service engineers are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

TVRO Express Service doesn't just mean fast delivery. It also means fast, efficient service after your system is installed.
